The Role and Operational Workflow of a Data Analysis Intern (Logistics & Operations)

A logistics analyst turns daily supply chain data into cost-saving decisions. Their mornings are spent checking dashboards to track on-time deliveries and spot bottlenecks. Mid-day focuses on efficiency: cutting empty truck miles, optimizing routes, and streamlining warehouse operations. In the afternoons, they build visual reports for management and evaluate shipping partners for contract negotiations. Continuously, they use historical data to forecast seasonal demand, ensuring the company has enough trucks and drivers ready for busy periods.

DAY-WISE REPORT

DAY-1: INTRODUCTION

On my first day, my manager explained how our company fits into the global supply chain. They introduced me to the core teams, showing how freight forwarders book cargo and the documentation team handles paperwork like Bills of Lading. I learned the basics of moving goods by air and sea, focusing on finding the best routes and managing risks like transit delays. Finally, my manager broke down the Customs House Agent (CHA) role. They explained that the CHA connects clients with the government by managing import and export documents, calculating taxes, ensuring legal compliance, and helping with cargo inspections at the port.

Day-2:- Functions of Logistic Shipment

These notes outline the fundamental lifecycle of an international export shipment. In logistics and shipping, these terms represent sequential functions that ensure goods move securely and efficiently from a supplier to a destination.

Day-3:- Preparation of Invoice

- Supply Chain Operations: Learned how to book cargo, optimize air and sea freight routes, and track international shipments from warehouse to final delivery.
- Customs Clearance & Compliance: Gained deep knowledge of the Customs House Agent (CHA) role, including filing import/export documents, calculating taxes using HSN codes, and understanding physical cargo inspection rules at the port.
- Logistics Administration: Mastered the invoicing workflow by learning how to gather shipment documents, separate third-party reimbursements from company service fees, and apply GST.
- Government Procedures: Learned the regulatory requirements for customs clearance work, including how to process mandatory government IDs (like the Form "H" Card) for port access.

Day-4:- Poster Creation & Previous Month Analysis

We teamed up as a group to tackle the project after our manager assigned us the task of creating the promotional poster. We started by researching our target audience and diving into the company's brand guidelines to keep our colors and typography strictly on track. From there, we brainstormed a few different visual concepts together and worked closely with the client, refining the best ideas based on their direct feedback. Once we locked in a clear direction, we used the design software to collaborate on a few polished, modern layouts for management to review. Finally, we double-checked all the fine details for quality and formatted the high-res files so the company could seamlessly deploy them for both print and the WordPress site.

The provided dataset is a logistics and shipping log detailing 14 distinct freight movements recorded between April 4 and April 29, 2026. The log tracks key shipment variables including invoice numbers, modes of transport, product descriptions, package quantities, geographical routing (origin to destination), and commercial partners/agents

- Heavy Focus on Sea Exports: Out of 14 total shipments, 13 were exports leaving Chennai, and nearly all of them (12) moved by sea. Air export and sea import only happened once each.
- Textiles & Organic Cottons: The core business is shipping apparel and footwear. The log features lots of sandals, slippers, and clothing like t-shirts, PJs, and baby bodysuits—with "organic cotton" popping up as a major recurring material.
- Global Footprint: Shipments are headed all over the world, with deliveries stretching across Japan, Singapore, Australia, New Zealand, the UK, and Denmark.
- A Lone Machinery Import: The only inbound shipment was a single sea import from China on April 8, bringing in 4 packages of "Hoshima brand" machinery.

Day-5 & 6:- Sea Export Data Analyst

On our fifth day, after completing our training on shipping basics, Customs House Agent (CHA) procedures, and invoice verification, the company assigned us the role of Data Analysts. In this position, we receive the buyer and seller checklists for sea exports and cross-verify the data against the sea export commercial invoices for accuracy. Once we validate this information, the company proceeds to clear the export shipping bill with the port.

Under their guidance, I conducted a thorough audit of the document, carefully cross-referencing billing items, weight specifications, and regulatory codes to ensure complete accuracy. Using this data, I drafted a meticulously organized air export checklist to serve as a Standard Operating Procedure (SOP). My manager then reviewed and approved the final checklist, and both documents were officially filed into the export clearance records for future operations.

Day-15:- Sea Import Bill Clearance

On the fifteenth day, we received the sea import invoice. The Managing Partner of Lotus Shipping Company assigned us the critical task of analysing this document and generating a comprehensive checklist based on its contents. We began by thoroughly reviewing the invoice to verify the accuracy of all provided information, carefully cross-referencing details such as freight charges, container numbers, and consignee data.

Following this detailed analysis, we drafted the sea import checklist, ensuring every compliance requirement was meticulously documented. Once the checklist was perfected, the Managing Partner officially filed both the completed checklist and the original invoice into the import clearing file, ensuring everything was organized for seamless customs processing.

Internship Overview

The report details a 15-day internship (from May 15 to May 29, 2026) completed at Lotus Shipping Company in Chennai. The intern functioned primarily within a Data Analysis (Logistics & Operations) role, working heavily with customs documentation and specialized shipping software.

Knowledge Gained

During the internship, the author acquired comprehensive theoretical and practical knowledge regarding global trade operations:

- Logistics vs. Shipping: Learned the difference between planning the entire supply chain (logistics) and actually moving the goods (shipping).
- Customs Compliance: Saw how a Customs House Agent handles government rules, taxes, and legal paperwork for clients.
- Shipping Operations: Learned the basics of cargo insurance, container security, and how to ship full or partial containers (FCL and LCL).
- Billing & Taxes: Figured out how to calculate service fees, add third-party costs (like port fees), and apply GST.
- Industry Software: Gained hands-on practice using e-Royal IMPEX software for data entry, filing documents, and accounting.

Key Outcomes & Tasks Completed

The internship translated theoretical knowledge into actionable operational tasks:

- Data Analysis: Analyzed 14 freight movements (April 2026), identifying that the company's primary business is sea exports of textiles and apparel (specifically organic cotton) to Denmark and Australia.
- Invoice Auditing: Successfully cross-checked and verified buyer/seller checklists against commercial invoices for various sea and air shipments.
- Digital Billing: Processed live import and export bills in the e-Royal software, accurately inputting exchange rates, IGST, and cargo descriptions.
- SOP Creation: Developed official compliance checklists (Standard Operating Procedures) for customs clearances, which were approved by management for official company use.
- Marketing & Fieldwork: Designed a promotional poster for digital marketing and handled essential field operations, including banking and document notarization.

Conclusion

My 15-day internship at Lotus Shipping Company gave me real-world experience in global logistics. By combining basic knowledge of freight and customs with hands-on data analysis, I saw how accurate information keeps international trade moving smoothly. Ultimately, I learned how a Customs House Agent (CHA) uses their expertise and careful data management to lower costs and keep the supply chain strong.
